Structure and Areas of Focus

The Blueprint is a Burnout Prevention Strategy Engine deployed via your “Burnout Prevention Working Group”. This is a permanent committee of physicians charged to build and deploy your physician wellness strategy to match your system's unique situation.

Areas of Focus:

1. Education:

Complete your people’s medical education. Teach everyone how to recognize and prevent burnout. Equip all providers with their personal burnout prevention strategy. Normalize the conversation around stress, burnout, resilience and engagement.

2. Process Improvement:

Always be working projects to decrease provider stress produced by the systems of care and documentation. Survey your people. Let them tell you what is not working. Get on projects to fix these issues. Disseminate the innovations to the larger group. Repeat.

3. Crisis Management:

Do not allow doctors hit by bad outcomes, medical errors, malpractice suits, mental illness or drug/alcohol addiction to become isolated and fall through the cracks. Maintain a 24 hour, physician-specific crisis hotline and an awareness campaign for physicians and their families so everyone knows what to do in a crisis situation.

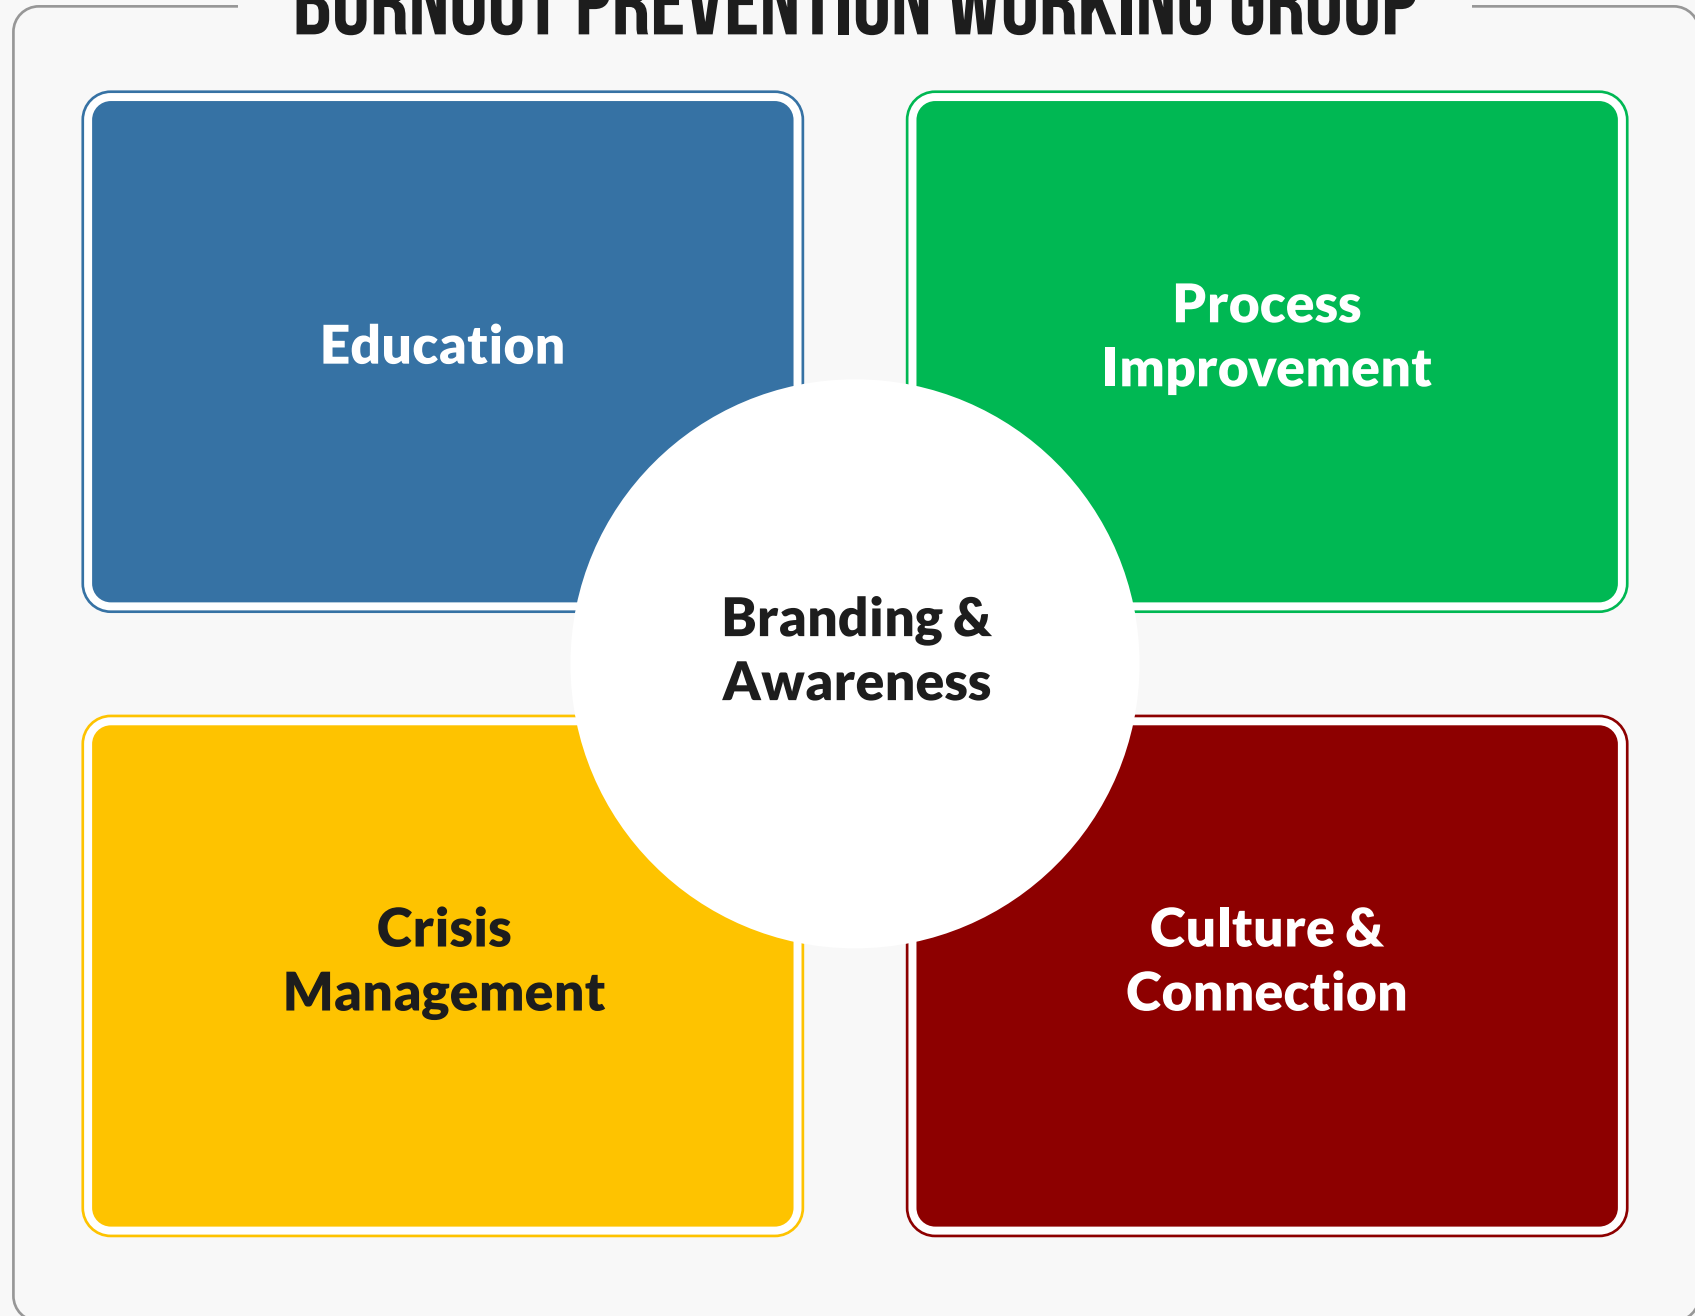

4. Cultural and Connection:

Maintain an active, fun, varied social calendar to enhance the human ties that bond your group. These human connections are the building blocks to the perception of “these people have my back”. They are the essence of a supportive culture in your group and so often are completely overlooked.

5. All wrapped in a Comprehensive Branding, Promotion and Awareness Campaign:

Ensure all providers are aware of what you are doing for them. You must let them know you have their back to ensure the Working Group avoids the “tree falls in the woods” syndrome. Working Group branding, brand awareness and a high impact communication strategy are essential.
